After a thorough analysis of globalization as a reality, internationalization strategies of companies, negotiation skills and the understanding of cultural differences of consumers around the globe, students should acquire during the semester an international approach to product designing in a global market along with its consequences. Contents include: Globalization, international marketing, internationalization strategies, cultural awareness, and consumer behavior and culture.